Art in Focus: Broken Boundaries

A Group Exhibition

The Broken Boundaries: A Group Exhibition,
January 4th to 23rd 2012 @ Art in Focus // Rogue Studios Chelsea
Chelsea Fine Arts Building

Art in Focus: Broken Boundaries is a group exhibition featuring some of the most exciting and talented artists in the international contemporary art world. A show unconfined by definitions, the exhibition operates as a showcase of new investigations in contemporary image making as we move into 2012. Broken Boundaries brings together a large group of international artists who utilize the gallery space as a forum to explore the dichotomy between the creative act, and the viewer's response to this act. In this multidisciplinary show, each artist's unique perspective is explored through a variety of sources from landscape and the body, to abstraction and emotion.

The exhibit showcases art, which both creates and manifests its own personal vision, drawing on a diverse cross-section of cultures and styles to realize a wide range of visual and conceptual ideas. Inviting viewers to a world where each artist's body of work speaks truths about life. Each work creates a visual pause, allowing the audience the time to contemplate their environment. Exploiting the "public space" of the gallery the curators will choreograph an exhibition that blends modes of art, design, architecture, sculpture, installation, and craft.

Each of the participating artists will also appear in the visual anthology; Art In Focus: Modern Masters, as well as other concurrent projects relating to this unique exhibit; including an artists seminar, (where the artists will present a slide show of further works to the public), and artist films, along with several other Internet projects.
